

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF SOUTH CAROLINA
ANDERSON/GREENWOOD DIVISION

BACKGROUND OF THE CASE

Plaintiff is an inmate at the Perry Correctional Institution of the South Carolina Department of Corrections. In the above-captioned case, Plaintiff has brought suit against "Social Security." This Court is construing Plaintiff's Complaint as a civil rights action against the Social Security Administration.

The “STATEMENT OF CLAIM” of the Complaint reveals that Plaintiff is seeking surviving child benefits for the time that he took educational courses while in prison. Plaintiff alleges or contends: (1) the “three strikes” law does not apply to this Complaint because the issues took place in 1975, 1976, and 1977 [Doc. 1 at 3]; (2) application of the “three strikes” law would violate the Ex Post Facto Clause [Id.]; (3) Plaintiff went to school in prison in 1975, 1976, and 1977 [Id.]; (4) Plaintiff “GOT A CHECK FOR $147.00 A MONTH OFF [his] FATHER GEORGE FURMAN COX, KORAN [sic] WAR, DIED 8-1-1960” [Id.]; (5) Plaintiff did not get his stepfather’s Social Security check [Id.]; and (6) Plaintiff would like to get what’s owed to him “BY SOCIAL SECURITY OFF LARRY GENE DEATON[.]” [Id.]. In his prayer for relief, Plaintiff seeks the “THE 21 MONTHS OWED” to him for going to school, plus interest, court costs, and attorney’s fees [Id. at 4].

DISCUSSION

Standard of Review for Pro Se Complaints

Under established local procedure in this judicial district, a careful review has been made of the pro se Complaint pursuant to the procedural provisions of 28 U.S.C. § 1915, 28 U.S.C. § 1915A, and the Prison Litigation Reform Act. Pursuant to the provisions of 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1)(B) and Local Civil Rule 73.02 DSC, the undersigned is authorized to review such complaints for relief and submit findings and recommendations to the District Court. The review has been conducted in light of the following precedents: Denton v. Hernandez, 504 U.S. 25, 31–35 (1992); Neitzke v. Williams, 490 U.S. 319, 324–25 (1989); Haines v. Kerner, 404 U.S. 519, 519 (1972)(per curiam); Nasim v. Warden, Maryland House of Corr., 64 F.3d 951, 953–56 (4th Cir. 1995)(en banc); Todd v. Baskerville, 712 F.2d 70, 71–74 (4th Cir. 1983); Loe v. Armistead, 582 F.2d 1291, 1295–96 (4th Cir. 1978); and Gordon v. Leeke, 574 F.2d 1147, 1151 (4th Cir. 1978). Plaintiff is a pro se litigant, and thus his pleadings are accorded liberal construction. See Erickson v. Pardus, 551 U.S. 89, 90–95 (2007)(per curiam); Hughes v. Rowe, 449 U.S. 5, 9–10 (1980)(per curiam); and Cruz v. Beto, 405 U.S. 319, 321–23 (1972)(per curiam). When a federal court is evaluating a pro se complaint or petition, a plaintiff’s or petitioner’s allegations are assumed to be true. Merriweather v. Reynolds, 586 F. Supp. 2d 548, 554 (D.S.C. 2008). Nonetheless, a litigant must plead factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant or respondent is plausibly liable, not merely possibly liable. Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 680–84 (2009). Even when considered under this less stringent standard, the Complaint is subject to summary dismissal. The requirement of liberal construction does not mean that the court can ignore a clear failure in the pleading to allege facts which set forth a claim currently cognizable in a federal district court. Weller v. Dep’t of Soc. Servs., 901 F.2d 387, 390–91 (4th Cir. 1990).

Requirements for a Cause of Action Under Section 1983 or Bivens Doctrine

This action is filed pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983, which provides a private cause of action for constitutional violations by persons acting under color of state law. Section 1983 “is not itself a source of substantive rights,” but merely provides ‘a method for vindicating federal rights elsewhere conferred.’” Albright v. Oliver, 510 U.S. 266, 271 (1994) (quoting Baker v. McCollan, 443 U.S. 137, 144 n. 3 (1979)). Accordingly, a civil action under § 1983 allows “a party who has been deprived of a federal right under the color of state law to seek relief.” City of Monterey v. Del Monte Dunes at Monterey, Ltd., 526 U.S. 687, 707 (1999).

Section 1983 provides, in relevant part:

Every person who, under color of any statute, ordinance, regulation, custom, or usage, of any State . . . subjects, or causes to be subjected, any citizen of the United States or any person within the jurisdiction thereof to the deprivation of any rights, privileges, or immunities secured by the Constitution and laws, shall be liable to the party injured in an action at law, suit in equity, or other proper proceeding for redress . . .

42 U.S.C. § 1983. To establish a claim under § 1983, a plaintiff must prove two elements:

(1) that the defendant “deprived [the plaintiff] of a right secured by the Constitution and laws of the United States;” and (2) that the defendant “deprived [the plaintiff] of this constitutional right under color of [State] statute, ordinance, regulation, custom, or usage.” Mentavlos v. Anderson, 249 F.3d 301, 310 (4th Cir. 2001) (third alteration in original) (citation and internal quotation marks omitted).

In Bivens v. Six Unknown Named Agents of Federal Bureau of Narcotics, 403 U.S. 388, 397 (1971), the Supreme Court established a direct cause of action under the Constitution of the United States against federal officials for the violation of federal constitutional rights. A Bivens claim is analogous to a claim under 42 U.S.C. § 1983: federal officials cannot be sued under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 because they do not act under color of state law. See Harlow v. Fitzgerald, 457 U.S. 800, 814–20 & n. 30 (1982). Harlow, which is often cited for the principle of the qualified immunity of state officials for acts within the scope of their employment, was brought against a federal official. In footnote 30 of the opinion in Harlow, the Supreme Court stated that Harlow was applicable to state officials sued under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. In other words, case law involving § 1983 claims is applicable in Bivens actions and vice versa. See Hartman v. Moore, 547 U.S. 250, 255 n. 2 (2006); and Starling v. United States, 664 F. Supp. 2d 558, 561 (D.S.C. 2009) (“Bivens allows an action against federal employees for violations of constitutionally protected rights. A Bivens action is the federal analog to a claim brought against state officials under 42 U.S.C. § 1983.”).

United States of America Immune from Suit

The United States cannot be sued without its express consent, and express consent is a prerequisite to a suit against the United States. United States v. Mitchell, 463 U.S.

206, 212 (1983). Moreover, a Bivens action may not be brought against the United States and other federal governmental agencies or entities, such as the Social Security Administration. FDIC v. Meyer, 510 U.S. 471, 486 (1994) (declining to extend Bivens remedy to federal agencies).

There is no “final decision” of the Commissioner for this Court to review

No “final decision” of the Commissioner of Social Security is currently before this Court. The Social Security Act provides for judicial review of adverse decisions rendered by the Social Security Administration. 42 U.S.C. § 405(g). The Supreme Court of the United States has enumerated three requirements for judicial review:

Section 405(g) specifies the following requirements for judicial review: (1) a final decision of the [Commissioner] made after a hearing; (2) commencement of a civil action within 60 days after the mailing of notice of such decision (or within such further time as the [Commissioner] may allow); and (3) filing of the action in an appropriate district court, in general that of the plaintiff's residence or principal place of business. The second and third of these requirements specify, respectively, a statute of limitations and appropriate venue.

Weinberger v. Salfi, 422 U.S. 749, 763–64 (1975).

The Supreme Court noted that the second and third requirements were waivable by parties. Id. The first requirement, i.e., a final decision of the Commissioner made after a hearing was not listed or categorized as being waivable, unlike the statute of limitations and venue. 422 U.S. at 764. The Supreme Court held that the first requirement was mandatory: “We interpret the first requirement, however, to be central to the requisite grant of subject matter jurisdiction—the statute empowers district courts to review a particular type of decision by the [Commissioner], that type being those which are “final” and “made after a hearing.” 422 U.S. at 764.

Plaintiff is “struck out.”

Plaintiff is subject to the “three strikes” rule of the Prison Litigation Reform Act. The “three strikes” rule, codified at 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g), provides:

In no event shall a prisoner bring a civil action or appeal a judgment in a civil action or proceeding under this section if the prisoner has, on 3 or more prior occasions, while incarcerated or detained in any facility, brought an action or appeal in a court of the United States that was dismissed on the grounds that it is frivolous, malicious, or fails to state a claim upon which relief may be granted, unless the prisoner is under imminent danger of serious physical injury.

28 U.S.C. § 1915(g).

A federal court may take judicial notice of its own records. See, e.g., Colonial Penn Ins. Co. v. Coil, 887 F.2d 1236, 1239 (4th Cir. 1989) (“We note that ‘the most frequent use of judicial notice is in noticing the content of court records.’”). It can be judicially noticed that Plaintiff has filed three prior cases in this Court, which have been dismissed with prejudice, as frivolous, and deemed “strikes” under § 1915(g). See Cox v. U.S. Att'y Gen., et al., Civil Action No. 3:12-591-TMC, 2012 WL 1570093 (D.S.C. May 3, 2012); Cox v. S.C. Dep't of Corr. Dir. Jon E. Ozmint, et al., Civil Action No. 3:12-225-TMC, 2012 WL 1415149 (D.S.C. Apr. 24, 2012); and Cox v. United States, Civil Action No. 3:12-50-TMC, 2012 WL 1158861 (D.S.C. Apr. 9, 2012). In light of these “strikes” imposed in 2012, Plaintiff cannot proceed with the instant Complaint unless his claim satisfies the exception for imminent physical harm provided by the “three strikes” rule. See 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g); and Torres v. O'Quinn, 612 F.3d 237, 246 (4th Cir. 2010).

Moreover, the Court of Appeals has held that the “three strikes” provision of the Prison Litigation Reform Act is applicable with respect to “strikes” entered after its enactment on April 26, 1996. See Altizer v. Deeds, 191 F.3d 540, 545–47 (4th Cir. 1999); and Cox v. United States, Civil Action No. 3:12-52-TMC-JRM, 2012 WL 1570081, at *2 (D.S.C. Mar. 28, 2012) (“In this case, Plaintiff provides no facts to demonstrate that the three strikes rule was retroactively applied to any of his civil actions filed in federal court prior to the law’s enactment. In addition, the enactment of the three strikes rule in no way increases Plaintiff’s punishment for his current conviction. As such, Plaintiff’s ex post facto argument is without merit and this case is subject to summary dismissal.”), adopted by 2012 WL 1570075 (D.S.C. May 3, 2012), which was a prior case filed by Plaintiff.

The Complaint in the above-captioned case does not fit within the exception to proceed in forma pauperis as Plaintiff does not allege that he is in imminent danger of serious physical injury. Therefore, to proceed with this Complaint, Plaintiff must pay the full filing fee. Effective May 1, 2013, the Judicial Conference of the United States raised the filing fee for a civil case. The filing fee (set by the Congress and the Judicial Conference of the United States) for a non-habeas civil action is now four hundred dollars ($400). As a result, Plaintiff must pay the full filing fee of four hundred dollars ($400).

RECOMMENDATION

It is recommended that Plaintiff’s motion to proceed in forma pauperis [Doc. 12] be DENIED. It is further recommended that Plaintiff be given twenty-one (21) days from the date the United States District Judge rules on this Report and Recommendation to pay the filing fee of four hundred dollars ($400) and that the Office of the Clerk of Court withhold entry of judgment until such time for payment expires. If Plaintiff fails to pay the filing fee within the specified time period, it is further recommended that the Complaint be dismissed without prejudice under the “three strikes” rule of 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g), and that the Clerk of Court enter the required final judgment at the close of the twenty-one-day period permitted for payment of the filing fee.

Plaintiff’s attention is directed to the Notice on the next page.
